FORGER LEAVES FAMILY BEHIND

A Farm Hand Cashes a Number of Checks and Leaves For Parts Unknown.

WIFE AND CHILDREN HERE

Lorenzo Jackson, Who Heretofore
Has Borne a Good Reputation
Is Now a Fugitive.

Lorenzo Jackson, a farm hand
employed until the first of this week on the farm of T. J. Humes, west of this city, is a fugitive from justice with a serious charge hanging over his head, that of forgery.

Wednesday evening Mr. Humes learned that a check bearing his signature had been cashed by Jackson in this city, and was nearly dumb-founded to know that his trusted farm hand was guilty of the nefarious work. Later he learned that several checks, to which his name had been forged, were cashed about the city. Mulno & Guffin got one for $5;
Frank Wilson, one for $10; Bliss &
Cowing, one for $10, and James Mc-Bride, one for $10.

Last week, Mrs. Jackson sold a cow for $40 and deposited the money in the Rush County National bank.
When Humes began an investigation of the forgery he was surprised to find that Jackson had forged his wife's name and secured the money
she had placed in the bank. The last seen of Jackson was on Tuesday evening, when he left for parts unknown.

Jackson leaves a wife and four children in almost destitute circumstances. He came here with his family about two years ago from Osgood, and Mr. Humes says he was an excellent worker on the farm.
He was not known to drink to excess,
but it is said that he frequently gambled, and it is thought he lost
most of the money in this manner.
In all probability he lost his wife's money trying to win a handsome amount and afterwards became desperate in his effort to retrieve the lost money, thinking he would recall the checks with his winnings. It is a pitiable case on account of his family who are left behind to bear the brunt of one night's evil work of a father that will blight their lives forever.

LATER—It was later learned that Jackson forged a check for $3 on Newhouse & Abernathy, and that they filed an affidavit against him in Squire Kratzer's court. Jesse Hiatt, a brother-in-law of Jackson, paid the $3 and the affidavit was withdrawn.
Hiatt said that he thinks he knows where Jackson is located and that he understands he is not out of money.

YOUNG CHILD, PASSED AWAY

Kenneth, Son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Houston Died Friday.

Kenneth L. Houston, son of Mr.
and Mrs. Joseph Houston of Posey township, age one month and eighteen days, died Friday evening at 5:30 o'clock. Inanition is given as the cause of the child's death.

The funeral services will be conducted at the home near Arlington
by the Rev. DeWitt Beck of the Arlington Methodist church, Sunday afternoon at 1 o'clock. The remains will be buried in the Arlington East Hill cemetery.

Beethoven's one opera, "Fidelio,"
was first produced in 1805.

HAS ADDED FAST TROTTERS

Harry Jones Expects to Have One of the Strongest Stables Out.

Harrie Jones, of Rushville, Ind., expects to have one of the strongest stables out in 1909 says the Western Horseman. He has recently added some very fast green trotters and pacers, and has just arranged for a futuraury trotter that showed one of the fastest miles trotted last season
by a two-year-old.

MAKING EFFORT TO HAVE STATE DRY

Petitions Are Being Circulated in the Smaller Towns of State by Reformers.

TWO PETITIONS AT MILROY

Petitions are being circulated all over this State asking for the names of the voters, by the Anti-Saloon League, says the Milroy Press.
These petitions will be presented to the State Legislature at the next session and also in two years, asking that body to grant the State Constitutional Prohibition.

After the two legislatures pass upon it, the people will have a chance to vote on it outside of politics. This is a non-partisan move and should receive the support of every citizen on Indiana.

There are two petitions here, one
at W. L. McKee's store and one at S.
B. Jones' store.

NEW PLAYHOUSE FOR RUSHVILLE

Indianapolis Man is Said to be Backing The Project.

THIRTY CITIES IN CIRCUIT.

Plans are formulating for the erection of a new theater in Shelby-ville, a syndicate with play houses in thirty of the principal cities of the State backing the project says the Shelbyville News. H. H. Burnett, of Indianapolis, was in the city making a hasty survey of the field and, to the News, announced authoritatively Shelbyville would be represented in the theatrical chain.

It is the intention to keep the theater open winter and summer. In the summer the structure will be converted into an aerodome and in winter to a closed edifice. The highest class vaudeville will be introduced,
according to Mr. Burnett.

A lot 35x140 is desired, Mr. Burnett inspecting several proffered sites on Thursday. Plans will be rapidly pushed to a conclusion, he explained,
and by early spring expects to open
the theater to the public.

Mr. Burnett went from Shelby-ville to Columbus. He asserted theaters would be located in Connerville and Columbus but was not certain concerning Rushville and Greensburg.

SMALL POX IN RICHMOND.

Richmond Palladium: Smallpox
has again broken out in the city. It is a very mild case however and the authorities have vaccinated many of the neighbors to suppress the spread of the contagion. A young colored man by the name of Jordon, living near Chestnut and West Second streets, has the disease.

ALVIN LINVILLE LOSES FORTUNE

Rushville Man Lost His Nerve at Greensburg at Psychological Moment.

RECOGNIZED "WANTED WOMAN"

For Whom a Reward of $5000 Had Been Offered—Review Reviews
the Story.

Comes now the Greensburg Review with a hard lubk story of our distinguished townsman, Al Linville.
The Review says:

"Al Linville is not enjoying the glad New Year's day as he might had the circumstances been different.
And his despondency is all due to the fact that he lost five thousand dollars this week by not showing his usual nerve. For the first time in his life Al's nerve went back on him, and can not get it clear in his mind just how it all happened.

Mrs. Bertha Stone, the wife of a Uniontown, Pa., millionaire, who is said to have eloped a few days ago with an affinity, appeared on the streets of Greensburg this week.
There is a reward of five thousand dollars offered for her apprehension by her wealthy husband. Al saw her and immediately recognized her by the pictures that had appeared in the newspapers. He edged up to her as close as possible, and sure enough
there was the mole on the chin and the slight scar on her cheek. Then he saw visions of five thousand dollars,
a long summer of pleasure at the sea shore, and a life of comfort for the remainder of his days. But his nerve failed him. When he was about to reach out and take the prize he found to his horror that he was as helpless as a baby, and while he was cursing his luck and wondering when he would be able to make good the fine lady disappeared, and the next thing he knew she had shipped her luggage to Massillon, Ohio, and is now safe so far as he is concerned.
And this is why Al Linville is not enjoying this New Year's day."

GREAT EFFORT TO LINE UP MEMBERS

Of State Legislature Will be Made to Secure Appropriation For Hack-
leman Monument.

RESOLUTIONS BEING SENT OUT

The resolutions, which were drawn up by a committee appointed for that purpose, with an idea in view to secure an appropriation from the next State Legislature to erect a monument in honor of Gen. P. A. Hackle-man, have been printed in the form of circulars and are being sent out.
In an attempt to make it a state wide movement they are mailed to every G. A. R. post in the State and also to every member of the State legislature. It is thought that if every Grand Army man over the State can be interested in the movement, more pressure can be brought to bear upon the members of the legislature.

SMALLPOX AT BROOKVILLE.

Three cases of smallpox have developed in the country near Brookville and a man who works in the Brookville paper mill suspected of having symptoms of the disease was compelled to remain at home. It is said, however, that he has recovered.

CARTHAGE FOLK AGAIN IN COURT

Wife of Thomas Six Makes Startling
Accusations in a Divorce
Complaint.

BOASTED OF LEWD PARAMOURS

And Brazenly Flaunted Pictures of Other Girls in His Wife's Face.

About one year ago there were several stories published in these columns about Thomas Six and his wife, who were then residents of Carthage. Six was charged with assault and battery with intent to kill and was confined in the Rushville jail for several months. Another chapter was added to their lives yesterday when Mrs. Six filed suit for divorce in the Henry county circuit court.
The New Castle Tribune says of the complaint:

"Almost beyond belief in its revolting features is the story unfolded in the complaint for divorce which has been filed by Sarah Six, in which Thomas A. Six is made the defendant. The two were married in 1902, and separated in 1906. Mrs. Six asserts that while they were living together her husband would bring Miss Bessie Crush into their home and have intimate relations with her,
while his lawful wife was under the same roof.

She also complains that he had two other paramours, Pearl Barnum and Mayme Huber, whose pictures
he would flaunt in her face and tell her how much better looking they were than she.

Mrs. Six says that her husband is an able bodied man, capable of earning two dollars per day at labor, and that he has an income of more than five hundred dollars a year. She asks $300 alimony, and $50 for attorneys' fees."

ANNIVERSARY OF KNIGHTS OF PYTHIAS

Grand Lodge Issues a Bulletin Calling For General Celebration of Event.

A FEW STATISTICS ARE GIVEN

A. J. Lowe, Grand Chancellor, in bulletin 3, is calling a meeting of all Knights of Pythias lodges in Indiana
to be held on Friday, February 19, 1909, to celebrate the fortieth anniversary of the organization of the Grand Lodge in the grand domain of Indiana. The bulletin grants a dispensation to lodges having meetings
on other days, to change for this occasion to the date of the celebration.
It recommends a committee for preparing a program. A few statistics follow, showing that when the Grand Lodge was organized on February 19, 1869, there were but six subordinate lodges in the State and 142 members. Now 491 subordinate lodges with 63,236 members, an increase of more than five members
each day for 40 years.

In that time the subordinate lodges have paid their members for relief nearly $3,000,000.00.

The assets of the order in Indiana forty years ago amounted to $2,049.17, and today it amounts to $2,866,269.24.

from the Rush circuit to the Fayette circuit has been postponed until next term. The case of Thompson vs. the cemetery association from this county has also been postponed until next term.

BECOMES A BRIDE IN THE GOLDEN WEST

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lew Fargo Marries Anderson Man
in Portland, Oregon.

GRADUATE OF LOCAL SCHOOLS

Rushville friends of the Fargo family, former residents, will be interested to know of the marriage of Miss Aesah Fargo, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lew Fargo. The wedding occurred last Wednesday night at the home of the bride's parents in Portland, Oregon. Mr. Wilbur J.
Giltner of Anderson was the groom.
Miss Fargo is a graduate of the Rushville high school and later was a student at DePauw University.
She was a popular young lady and had many friends here.

BURNT CORK FOR KNIGHTS TEMPLAR

The Local Knights Plan a Private Minstrel Show For Annual Visitors.

PROPOSED TREAT FOR MILADY

The local Knights Templar will give a private minstrel show at the Masonic temple during the month of February. Heretofore the Knights have annually entertained their wives and lady friends with a reception and musical, but this year
they decided to give a more elaborate entertainment and the proposed minstrel show is the result. Many clever things are being planned by the clever members of the fraternity.

WILL BUILD STATE WIGWAM

Red Men of Indiana Will Have a Theater in Connection.

It is rumored about in Red Men circles that the Red Men of Indiana will build a beautiful lodge room
and theater combined in Indianapolis and the play house shall be known as the "Wigwam." At present they have a large surplus of cash on hand.

GAVE TRUSTEE PRESENT?

On last Wednesday evening the teachers of the town and township called on Trustee T. E. Bottorff and presented him with a fine library table as a token of their esteem for his kindly interest taken in the schools and in their work says the Milroy Press.

This was certainly a nice remembrance and one that Mr. Bottorff will highly prize as the years go by, and it will recall his pleasant associations in the management of the schools of this township.

CLAY PIGEONS AFTER TURKEYS

"One - Who - Was - There" Reports
Big Time at the McFatrige Home.

THE GUESTS NUMBERED 132

Arlington Band Played Upstairs
During Meal Time—John Trib-
bey "Not Present."

And they had big doings at the McFatrige home yesterday—New Year's Day. There were one hundred and thirty-two persons there—besides the children—who sat down to one of those good, old, New England dinners, like the mothers used to bake before they took up scientific cooking and read the Indianapolis
Star daily cooking recipes.

But think of it!! One hundred and thirty-two people, 132-count em-132. Eight more than Buffalo Bill has at every meal. Seven of the whitcap jury were there with their wives; Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Green,
Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Martin, John Titsworth and Mrs. James E. Watson, representing directly or indirectly the attorneys for the defense;
Miss Mae Bebout, court stenographer and oh, a host of others. All the neighbors pitched in to make it a grand and glorious occasion. All contributed something in the way of live fowls or cooked "eats." It is said—but not confirmed—that they wore out the blade of one hatchet
chopping the heads off chickens, turkeys, ducks, geese and other
toothsome fowls.

The Arlington band furnished the music and they were not a bit stingy
with it, but played on the least provocation. They played up stairs
while the hungry were being fed in the dining room. Of course they were not hidden away behind a bank of ferns and palms and all that sort of thing—but you couldn't see them,
and the effect was just the same as if it came floating out from the green plants.

After dinner all repaired to the field adjoining where one thousand blue clay pigeons were released, one at a time, and everybody took a shot at them. The shooting match continued most of the afternoon and proved a delightful pastime. A tent was constructed on the shooting grounds for the women. It had a floor and stove, and all the comforts of a hunting lodge. "No Legs," who will be remembered as one of the principal witnesses at the trial, was voted the champion, knocking down
the most birds with his gat.

Rev. Beck was on hand and asked the blessing at the "first table." The cream of the neighborhood was present, including all the high grass statesmen, road supervisors, trustees, ex-trustees, school teachers, principals et al. And they all had a great time, one that will be remembered for many years to come.
It will be told over and over again—
the story of the famous trial and the big dinner that followed, and in a few years, will be part of the sacred family tradition.

N. B. John Tribbey had dinner with his wife, at their home down the road, within hearing of the tuneful, soul stirring Arlington brass band.

DEATH LIST MAY EXCEED 200,000

This Is the Estimate of Director of Observatory.

THE LIPARI ISLANDS SAFE

Report That the Ancient Aeolian Isles, Famed in Fable and Song, Had Sunk Into the Sea Was Found to Be Unfounded, They Having Suffered Little or No Damage—Prof. Ricco of the Mount Etna Observatory Now Places List of Victims at the Appalling Number of 200,000.

Rome, Jan. 2.—Prof. Ricco, director of the observatory at Mount Etna, estimates that the victims of the earthquake exceed 200,000.

Hundreds of dangerous criminals have been arrested by the troops and are under close guard.

Great relief was felt here when the announcement was made that the Lipari Islands, which were reported to have disappeared with their population of 28,000, suffered little or no damage from the earthquake.

Public opinion is seriously concerned with regard to the safety of the king and queen and the possible danger from tottering walls. The king frequently has tried to persuade the queen to rest or return to Rome, but she always refused, declaring that it would break her heart to abandon her husband in his labors for the country in its anguish.

The King Indefatigable.

King Victor Emmanuel has been indefatigable. He has shown wonderful activity and endurance, leaving no point in Messina unvisited. He has supervised the entire work in the fallen city and his presence has infused new courage and energy into the rescuers and the survivors, hungry and wounded as they are. Often he is surrounded by a crowd of victims, who, as though the sight of the king has restored their strength, cheer enthusiastically and shout: "We have a king; we have a protector."

A large number of soldiers have been landed from the various steamers arriving at Messina and other stricken places, and all efforts are being directed toward embarking the wounded refugees, who are crowding all available places. Some of these will be sent as far as Genoa.

A touching feature of the material aid offered by all classes of people in Rome is the donation of clothing and bedding, which the workmen are freely giving to collecting students. Reports from all parts of Italy indicate the same generous spirit. The king has placed the royal palaces at Naples and Caserta at the disposal of the injured.

Princess Yolande, the seven-year-old daughter of the king, having had the reason for her parents' absence explained to her, carried about a contribution box among her little friends at a party given in her honor at the Quirinal yesterday afternoon. She herself put in the box her first tiny gold ring, which was given to her on Christmas by her grandmother, Dowager Queen Marguerite; her younger sister, Princess Mafalda, gave a gold chain, while Prince Umberto, the heir-apparent, four years old, contributed a headless doll.

Disposing of the Dead.

Vessels loaded with refugees continue to stream into Naples and Palermo, and each day sees the arrival of additional steamers in the straits of Messina. Signor Chimiri, a leading Calabrian deputy, in an interview, advises the concentration of all the injured at Naples and Rome, on the ground of the impossibility of accommodating them as in 1906, near their own homes. It is the government's intention to remove all the survivors possible to the various ports of Italy.

As an instance of his quick grasp of the situation the king, soon after his

BETTER THAN SPANKING

Spanking does not cure children of wetting. There is a constitutional cause for this trouble. Mrs. M. arrival at Messina, wired to Premier Giolitti:

"Send ships and men; above all, send ships loaded with quicklime."

So far as has been possible, quicklime has been used on the dead; many bodies have been burned and others buried. In the relief work officers and men of the foreign warships have been untiring and their courage is beyond words. The crew of the British cruiser Drake gave up everything they possessed for the benefit of the refugees, and practically forgot rest and sleep for more than thirty-six hours in their devotion to duty.

Reports are published that it is the king's intention to sell his property in Sicily and devote the proceeds to the assistance of the sufferers. It is also stated that the pope will suppress the dioceses of Messina and Reggio, adding them to Catania and Catanzaro respectively. A dispatch from Catania says that it is proposed to build a new suburb to that city and christen it Messina, quartering therein all the survivors of the fallen city.

It is now declared almost certain that no English or American tourists were injured through the destruction of the Hotel Trinacria at Messina.

REFUGEES LINED ALL ROADS FROM MESSINA

Victims of Earthquake Still Seeking Places of Safety.

Catania, Jan. 2.—A heavy rain continues to fall at Messina, increasing the suffering of the injured and making more difficult the work of rescue, but it is quenching the fires and having a slightly purifying effect on the air. The distribution of food has been organized. Bakeries have been opened and slaughter houses established, and it is hoped that by nightfall no one will be without food.

The road between here and Messina is filled with refugees. There are crowds of them at every station of the railroad and they are pouring into the main highways from outlying villages, hamlets and huts. Some of them stagger along overloaded with their most precious possessions; others are driving before them a donkey or a cow weighted down with household goods, while still others are accompanied by a sheep or a few goats or perhaps a faithful dog; but a vast majority of the survivors have saved nothing. All their possessions are on their backs in the shape of tattered clothing, scantily covering their nakedness. The survivors one and all tell awful tales of death and destruction. They say that there are undoubtedly still living people trapped in the ruins of the smaller villages that have not been carefully searched, that others are straying along the beach and that still others are high up in the mountains, where they fled to escape the waters.

More than five full days have now elapsed since the first shock, and it is hard to believe that there still are living souls in the wreckage. Death would be preferable to their agony and suffering.

The President's Sympathies Aroused.

Washington, Jan. 2.—Instead of taking a day's vacation today, as had been planned originally, President Roosevelt has remained at his office considering how best the nation may show in a substantial way its sympathy with the Italian people in their great hour of need and distress. As an outcome of the day the president hopes to be able to formulate a message to congress to be laid before that body when it convenes Monday, recommending specific action on the part of this nation.

THEATER HORROR AVERTED AT ERIE

House Fireman's Presence of Mind Prevented Panic.

HE KEPT THE SHOW GOING

Appealing to the Actors to Keep Up the Play, the Fireman of the Park Opera House Quieted the Fears of the Audience, Which Was Dismissed Without Undue Haste and Without Serious Casualty—House Was Packed and Amazement Was Expressed That Situation Was Carried Off Without a Single Fatality.

Erie, Pa., Jan. 2.—"Keep the show going, for God's sake!" called Abraham Louch, fireman of the Park opera house, to the performers on the stage at 10:15 o'clock last night, when he discovered that the building was on fire. Although there were many narrow escapes and a dozen women fainted and had to be carried out, no one was seriously injured and much of the building was saved from destruction. Every one of the 1,500 seats in the theater was occupied.

The John Sullivan Amusement company was presenting "In the Nick of Time." Louch saw smoke issuing from the floor of the gallery and sent in a still alarm. He reached the rear of the stage before the audience was advised of the danger and, speaking just loud enough for the actors to hear, appealed to them to continue the act. Then he stepped to the front and called to the audience to file out in order, giving them to understand that the fire was in an adjoining structure.

No one tried to crowd until smoke began to fill the building. Then a crush began. The fire department saved scores from jumping from the third-story fire-escapes by getting ladders up. In the front seats of the balcony were many women and children and several, overcome by fright, fainted and were carried out. Of a dozen women carried into a nearby drug store, all had fainted but one, but they were soon revived. Mrs. William F. Schaefer fell in an aisle, overcome by smoke, but she was near the end of the line and was not trampled. While she is suffering from shock, she is expected to recover.

Fire Chief McMahon expressed amazement that the house was empty without fatality, in view of the fact that standing room tickets had been sold.

The theater was flooded by water and its decorations and furnishings ruined.

TO TRY SARAH KOTEN.

New York, Jan. 2.—Without fear and with her shattered health completely restored, Sarah Koten, the young Russian nurse who slew Dr. Samule Auspitz because, it is alleged, he wronged her, is prepared to face the ordeal of her trial, scheduled to begin before Justice Vernon M. Davis, in the Criminal Branch of the Supreme Court, day after tomorrow.

Sarah is a "model" prisoner, and not once during the twenty-four hours is she absent from her little baby. In a small rosewood cradle at the side of the white prison cot occupied by the mother, the little fellow sleeps at night. During the day the mother, when not busy sewing on garments for him to wear when he appears in court, is walking about the hospital singing and talking and bringing cheer to the other prisoners.

Emotional insanity will be the plea of the young prisoner when arraigned for trial, and her attorneys expect to lay before the jury evidence that they believe will bring forth an acquittal. Sarah will take the stand in her own defense and tell of the alleged wrongs inflicted by the man she slew.

"I have no fear of the outcome," said the young prisoner. "I don't believe there are twelve men in all the world who would convict me after hearing my story. My only worry is that I shall be separated from my baby during my trial, for he will be such a comfort to me during the long hours I must spend in court."

SPRECKELS A POWER.

Late "Sugar King" Versatile Business Genius—Almost Owned Hawaii.

The late Claus Spreckels, widely known as the "sugar king" of the Pacific coast, first began business as proprietor of a grocery store in San Francisco. He prospered and then began the erection of a brewery. When the latter was on a paying basis he disposed of the grocery. Later on he turned his attention to sugar and built several refineries. Satisfied with the venture, he sold the brewery. For many years sugar growing and refining were his business, and he amassed an immense fortune. He became a great power in the Hawaiian Islands and was wont to say at times, "Kala-kaua is king, but I have run the machine there for ten years."

When the sugar refinery owned by Spreckels was making him a rich man rapidly there were three others in San Francisco. Spreckels eventually got them all, either by purchase or subsidies. To the owners of the largest he paid the enormous sum of $500,000, they agreeing to quit business for a period of five years. When the contract expired they attempted to renew it, but Claus refused to have anything more to do with them. "We shall resume if you do not make another contract with us," they said.

"Very well," replied Claus, "go ahead. I don't care what you do." They went out to their idle refinery and found that disuse had completely ruined it. The machinery was worthless.

How Claus Spreckels became engaged in furnishing gas and electricity to the residents of San Francisco and the motive that induced him to embark in that branch of trade are illustrative of the man.

A moderately large gas and electric plant was located near the home of Mr. Spreckels, and the smoke from the soft coal annoyed members of his household. The manager and Mr. Spreckels, being members of the same club, frequently met. On one occasion Mr. Spreckels remarked to the manager in his usual good natured manner:

"I wish you could find a way to prevent that smoke nuisance at your works. It would be a favor that my family would appreciate."

"If you want to talk to me about matters at the works you will see me at my office," was the manager's brusque reply.

"I'll be hanged if I will," replied Mr. Spreckels, "but I'll stop the causes for complaint."

The very next day Mr. Spreckels began preparations to engage in the manufacture of gas and electricity on a large scale. In a very short time he and others invested nearly $10,000,000 in the venture, and one of the first results after the works were in operation was the closing of the smaller concern and the departure of the manager who had insulted Mr. Spreckels in quest of another situation.

CHAMPION A TIMID LAD.

Mother Made Fighter of Jack Johnson, Tommy Burns' Conqueror.

Mrs. Timney Johnson, the widowed mother of Jack Johnson, who won the heavyweight championship by defeating Tommy Burns, says she made a fighter of her boy, who is one of three sons of nine children, but she had no idea of making a professional pugilist of him.

"Jack was a slim built youngster till he was about fifteen years old," she said. "He is now thirty-one and was a regular baby and was always getting into trouble at school and with his playmates and always got the worst of it. His sister had to fight all his battles, and she soon got tired of it. One day when Jack was about fourteen years old a small boy whipped him, and he came home crying."

"I gave him another spanking and told him he would have to learn to fight his own battles and that every time he got licked I would give him another licking when he came home. He was never whipped after that, and he licked every boy, big or little, that tackled him."

CHURCH TO MAKE LOANS.

St. Louis Pastor Plans to Aid Worthy Needy Who Shun Charity.

The Rev. Jacob E. Meeker, pastor of the Compton Hill (St. Louis) Congregational church, starts the new year with innovations that he believes will add to the effectiveness of his church and hold the interest of his congregation.

Beginning the 1st of January, the Compton Hill church operates a loan department for the benefit of all worthy persons, regardless of church membership, who dislike the idea of accepting charity. Rev. Meeker will not preach a night sermon hereafter more than once each month. The other Sunday nights will be devoted to music, art and literature.

"Preaching in itself is, I believe, greatly overdone these days," he says.

Says Chicago Is Bad as Hell.

Choosing as his text a quotation from Isaiah, "Hell hath enlarged itself," and intimating that Chicago is the new annex thereof, the Rev. W. H. Head, pastor of the Union Avenue Methodist Episcopal church, proceeded to discuss the topic, "Is Hell Worse Than Chicago?" "In some respects hell is no worse than Chicago," said the clergyman. "Hell has no innocent or temptations to the innocent." Mr. Head said that about the only advantage Chicago had over hell was that Chicago could be redeemed and hell could not.

GEORGIA'S BIRTHDAY.

Atlanta, Ga., Jan. 2.—Today was Georgia's 121st birthday, since it was on second day of January 1788 that her convention ratified the constitution of the United States, and so made a part of the Union what is now the largest commonwealth east of the Mississippi, Delaware and ratified first, then, after much discussion, Pennsylvania and New Jersey, while Georgia was fourth among the thirteen original States, and, incidentally, the first southern one to ratify. In the minds of the Georgians there was no reason why they should hesitate. The constitution made fair provision for the slaveholding States, this colony of Oglethorpe's was too far away from the storm center of politics to be influenced by any antifederalist sentiment, and as slaves were running across the borders into Spanish territory and the Creek Indians harassed her frontiers, she felt the need of such protection as the big centralized government would give.

Since that important day Georgia has known many troubles but many more prosperous times. Georgia was the fifth State to secede and join the Confederacy. During the four years of civil war she contributed 120,000 troops, 20,000 more than the voting population she had at the outbreak of the war. She possibly suffered more than any of the southern States, but out of the ashes that marked the wide area over which Sherman passed Georgia rose again, phoenix-like, to startle the world of today with her prosperity.

Plenty of Him.
"What sort of man is Jinks?"
"The impression you get of Jinks depends on the circumstances under which you meet him. If you're there to collect money you won't like him. But if you're there to pay money he seems a lovely character."

His Way Out of It.
"He don't give nuthin' to the church now?"

"No. Somebody told him the Bible says salvation is 'free,' an' he says fur he it from him to dispute the Scriptures!"—Atlanta Constitution.

PROHIBITION FIGHT.

Nashville, Tenn., Jan. 2.—The liquor issue in all its phases will be a burning question before the legislature when it convenes here this month. State-wide prohibition advocates are making strong claims and opened headquarters here with former Senator I. L. Pendleton in charge.

QUEEN ALEXANDRA

The Sweetness and Charity of England's Queen

Queen Alexandra, whom Dean Stanley termed "the angel in the palace," has for over forty years endeared herself to the hearts of the British people since 1863, when a girl of nineteen in her quaint, little, old-fashioned poplin frock and shawl, she landed at Gravesend as the bride of the Prince of Wales. Her early life was passed in extreme plainness and simplicity, because of the smallness of the family income. When she was born, her father, then Prince Christian, had no hope of ever being King of Denmark, for his relation to the reigning king was so distant. He had nothing but his military pay and his wife's modest dowry. The life in their home, the Yellow Palace at Copenhagen, was pretentious only in name. The daughters, Alexandra and Dagma, who became Empress of Russia, wore garments of cheap material cut in the plainest style.

When Alexandra was seventeen, the Prince of Wales, while speaking to one of his friends, jestingly asked to see the portrait of his sweetheart. Inadvertently the wrong picture was handed to the Prince, and instead of the face of his friend's fiancée, he saw the likeness of "the most beautiful woman in Europe." The future king of England promptly fell in love with the portrait which led to his marriage two years later.

The simplicity of her early years has ever clung to the Queen; though in the court she has not been of it, and for society she has cared little. Her home circle has been her throne, where she has reigned with sweetness and love. Her kindness, gentleness, tact and generosity have been always at the call of need, and since she went to England has been instrumental in raising or causing to be raised over $250,000,000 for charity.

In one of King Christian's weekly letters to her, he wrote that an elderly lady-in-waiting to the late Queen of Denmark was dying, and that her one wish was to speak again to her dear "Princess Alex." At that time it was impossible for Alexandra to leave England, but a long tender message of love and hope spoken by her into a phonograph, was sent by special courier to Copenhagen. Its arrival a short time before the aged lady's death made her last hours serenely happy.

At Sandringham she led the life of a country lady, finding her pleasure in her children, the house, the grounds, her pets, and in ministering acts of mercy. Serene, gracious and beautiful, her life has been quiet, though with a thread of sorrow running through days of seemingly golden happiness.

HOME COURSE IN MODERN AGRICULTURE

By C. V. Gregory

Of the Agricultural Division of the Iowa State College
Covering the Course of Study Followed by the Iowa State College

WILL BE PUBLISHED IN THE REPUBLICAN BEGINNING FRIDAY, JAN. 8

In Installments

The Series Covers Eighteen Lessons, one Lesson to Appear each Tuesday and Friday Until Course is Complete

Following are the Subjects Treated:

- | | | |
|-------------------------------------|---|---------------------------------|
| 1 How a seed starts to grow | 7 The selection of seed | 13 How animals grow |
| 2 How plants eat and grow | 8 Corn growing | 14 Some points on stock feeding |
| 3 Preparing the ground | 9 Weeds and how to combat them | 15 Breeding live stock |
| 4 Water in relation to plant growth | 10 Some insect pests | 16 Farm buildings |
| 5 Leguminous crops and rotations | 11 Bacteria, how they affect the farmer | 17 The farm house |
| 6 How plants are propagated | 12 The selection and care of farm machinery | 18 The business side of farming |

The success of scientific farming with its greatly increased yields has aroused strong interest among farmers throughout the country. So greatly was Governor Deneen impressed with the importance of the subject when he attended the Illinois Corn Show in Springfield recently that he decided to enter the Agricultural School at the University of Illinois to take up the course, as told in the press dispatches. These articles give you at home what the governor gets in college.

Knowledge Worth Many Dollars to the Farmer

Besides the practical value of these articles, they are very interesting, revealing the magic of chemistry as seen in growing things.

Saturday, January 2, 1909.

The fact that figure "9" is much in evidence in the coming year's date is considered lucky, and as luck is much better a matter of expecting it, we may look for a prosperous year.

It is a wise person who looks ahead and plans accordingly. It prevents that worry and confusion which is always the experience of those who leave things to the last minute and who by so doing disappoint themselves and others by the imperfect character of their work.

The first contest held under the new local option law in Wabash and Lawrence counties resulted in overwhelming victories for the local option forces. Both of these are Republican counties. Now if a couple of Democratic counties will vote the same way the legislature will likely sit up and take notice.

The government forest service has kept records during the last few years as to the causes of forest fires and reports that in 1907, out of 13,55 fires which destroyed 44 per cent. of our 168,000,000 acres of forest reserve, 346 were started by campers, 273 by railroads, 176 by lightning, 65 by engines used in lumbering, 34 by burning brush and 30 by herdsmen and hunters. It is estimated that a very large percentage of these losses can be prevented, and no doubt they will be in the future.

Perhaps new year resolutions would be better kept if we made fewer of them. In the fervor of good intentions which possesses many people at the beginning of the year, some make resolutions on everything, little and big. When the fervor passes and one realizes the difficulty and even responsibility of keeping all of them, the bars are let down and the good resolutions scatter in every direction. Far better make but one or two resolutions covering what is essential in one's life, and then spare no effort to keep them.

The divorce statistics of this country are not pleasant reading and reveal a deplorable amount of domestic infelicity. Admitting as all do, that in many instances divorces are necessary and make for better domestic conditions, yet it cannot be denied that divorce is far too frequent and that some reform is needed. Probably what is most needed is a higher conception of the marriage state and fewer injudicious marriages. Many people enter upon the marriage relation who are altogether unfitted or unprepared for it. Then, too, many people seem to look upon marriage as almost a joke or a piece of fun, and they learn by sad experience in most cases the truth of the old adage, that "those who marry in haste repent at leisure." The horseplay and frivolity often witnessed at weddings also is not conducive to an exalted idea of marriage. If the sacredness of the institution were more fully recognized and better judgment shown in forming ties there would soon be a falling off in divorce statistics.

Pittsburg does not rank very high in a moral sense among the cities of this land. Most people connect it with disreputable millionaires, chorus girls and family scandals. Doubtless this idea is exaggerated, but none the less there has been too much cause for the unfavorable opinion formed. And now the city will rank still lower as the result of the corruption which seems to have honeycombed its city council. Probably the reason for this deplorable state of affairs is to be found in the hitherto passive or indifferent attitude of the good element which has been content to let unworthy men run the business of the city. Sooner or later corruption results and things get from bad to worse until they become intolerable. Then comes reform, which in the majority of cases is spasmodic only, instead of being permanent. It is now within the power of the citizens of Pittsburg to purify its municipal life, redeem its name and set a much needed example to other cities where graft and dishonesty flourish, by a thoroughly municipal house cleaning and keeping the house clean.

Judge Taft's plan for controlling corporations has been semi-officially announced in the newspapers and it has the endorsement of the Secretary of Commerce and Labor. The gist of the proposition is to make the Interstate Commerce Commission a judicial body exclusively rather than an administrative authority with quasi judicial power, and to transfer to a bureau of the Department of Commerce and Labor the duty of exercising administrative control over railroads and other corporations doing an interstate business. It is proposed to consolidate in this bureau some of the work now done by the Interstate Commerce Commission, and the Department of Justice and the Department of Agriculture.

An interesting bulletin and one full of statistics concerning marriage and divorce from 1886 to 1906 has been issued by the census bureau. The total number of marriages recorded during that period of twenty years was 12,832,044. The number annually reported increased from 483,069 in the year 1887 to 853,290 in the year 1906. The increase year by year was by no means uniform. The marriage rate, the census officials find, is quickly responsive to economic conditions. A small increase shown for 1893 and an actual decrease in the succeeding year reflect the influence of the panic of 1892, and normal conditions do not appear to have been restored in the matrimonial market until 1899. In the twenty years the divorces amounted to 945,625. For the earlier investigation covering the twenty years 1867 to 1887 inclusive the number reported was 328,716, or hardly more than one-third of the number recorded in the second twenty years. In divorces Illinois leads all the States. South Carolina had none, there being no divorce laws in that State.

INDIANA POLITICS

ROBERT G. TUCKER.

Indianapolis, Jan. 2.—In connection with the efforts of the state Federation of Labor to change the convict labor statute at the coming session of the legislature, it may be said that under the present law it is not possible that more than 100 men shall be employed at any contract labor factory, and there are now five contracts. Under another provision of the law an additional hundred men could be employed, but there are not enough contracts to provide for the employment of the full quota. The five contracts are with a chair factory, a granite works, an overall factory, a cooperage establishment and a shirt factory. The state on its own account operates a binder twine factory. It has been suggested that many of the worse prisoners of the Indiana reformatory at Jeffersonville and possibly some of the same class of men from the state prison might be employed in a state brick factory, making brick to be used in the improvement of roads and in other public works. This would involve the purchase of ground with a soil suitable for the making of brick and the erection of an additional prison institution, but it has been suggested that this would really be of benefit to the institutions in that it would reduce the number of men in these institutions and would leave only those whose reformation seems more hopeful. However, there has been nothing definite as to this suggestion.

Another effort is to be made to lessen the competition between convict and free labor. The prison labor committee of the State Federation of Labor will meet Monday for the purpose of discussing a report which the committee of the federation in relation to prison labor legislation at the coming session of the general assembly. The chairman of the committee is John Hughes and the other members are Edgar A. Perkins, Clarence Gaumer and Amer Kepple. They returned earlier in the week from a visit at the state prison at Michigan City. The members of the committee did not feel inclined today to discuss the committee's probable action before the meeting Monday, when they expect to agree upon a plan of action. The purpose of the committee is to reduce to a minimum and eventually, if possible, to eliminate all prison labor in Indiana which is in competition with free labor. At Michigan City the committee found that 471 prisoners were at work under the five labor contracts out of a prison population of about 1,200.

At present it seems that all of the Democratic senatorial aspirants are conducting dignified campaigns and will not attempt to pull the lines too closely early in the contest. There is a strong probability that the legislative program will provide that no bills be introduced in either the house or the senate until after Governor-elect Marshall has been inaugurated, Jan. 11. This will be four days after the legislature convenes. Lieutenant Governor Hall will be inaugurated Jan. 11 also, which means that Lieutenant Governor Hugh T. Miller will preside over the senate for four days. An effort may be made by the Democrats to prevent the organization of the upper house until after the inauguration of Mr. Hall. The constitution, however, provides that the legislature shall convene on the first Thursday after the first Monday in January. Organization is the first thing taken up.

ANOTHER MARATHON TONIGHT

Dorando and Longboat to Try Conclusions Again.

Buffalo, Jan. 2.—Coming here from his honeymoon, accompanied by his bride of four days, Tom Longboat, the famous Indian runner, will run a race tonight over the full Marathon distance with Dorando Pietri. Dorando and Longboat met recently in Madison Square Garden, New York, the latter winning, and tonight's race has attracted much attention among local sports.

Tonight's race was originally set for yesterday, New Year's day, but Longboat's matrimonial arrangements and other reasons caused the postponement.

Charged With Killing Schoolmate. Mattoon, Ill., Jan. 2.—Moses Calhoun, thirteen years old, living west of this city, near Oconee, was arrested on a charge of murdering a schoolmate, Bertie Linton, on Dec. 14. The coroner's jury exonerated Calhoun, but the dead boy's mother, Mrs. John Orr, swore out the warrant. The children were returning from school, when Calhoun is said to have struck Linton with a club, death resulting instantly.

Cuba Preparing For Inauguration. Havana, Jan. 2.—As a result of a conference at the palace today between Gov. Magoon and Alfredo Zayas, vice president-elect, it was decided that Gov. Magoon should shortly issue a decree convoking the Cuban congress for January 13 to scrutinize the vote in the recent presidential election.

WILL LECTURE ON TUBERCULOSIS

Dean H. L. Russel of Wisconsin University Will Deliver Address on Important Subject.

AT PURDUE UNIVERSITY JAN. 12.

A subject in Which All Are Vitally Concerned Has Gained Foothold in Indiana.

The subject of tuberculosis is receiving much attention at the present time. The public generally, health authorities and livestock men are all vitally concerned. The dreaded disease has gained a foothold in Indiana and any information regarding methods of prevention and eradication is eagerly received.

Many cities now being supplied with milk from Indiana dairies taking active steps through their health authorities, toward the prevention of tuberculosis. Dairy men are therefore directly interested in the subject.

During the past few months Purdue University has received a large number of requests for information and assistance in testing livestock for tuberculosis. With the idea of giving the people the most reliable and up-to-date information, the subject has been given a prominent place on the program for the Farmer's Short Course.

On January 12, 1909, Dean H. L. Russell of the University of Wisconsin, will discuss "The Economic Aspects of Tuberculosis Problem." Dean Russell is one of the foremost authorities on this subject and will be able to give helpful information. Especially will the discussions be of interest and value to dairymen since Dean Russell's work has been most intimate with the dairy industry. The University authorities are anxious that all persons interested in the prevention and the eradication of tuberculosis will join with them and make the work of January 12, 1909, of the greatest helpfulness to the cause in Indiana.

AMUSEMENTS

Large crowds were in attendance at all of the shows at the Vandet theater last night. A double reel of films will be used tonight on which are the following subjects, "A Voice From The Dead," "Don't Fool Your Wife" and "Maple Sugar." Will You Give Me Back the Old Love, Molly Mine" will be sung by Miss Clara Gregg. The talking pictures will be used again in a short time.

The Kramer rink will be open for skating tonight.

What Our Neighbors Are Talking About

COULDN'T SETTLE IT.

(Greensburg Review.)

The following dialogue was heard today between two old soldiers:

"Where were you forty-five years ago today?"

"You mean the cold New Year's—but it was forty-six years ago."

"No, it was January 1, 1864."

"Yes, but I know it was January, 1863."

"Well, let it go. Where were you?"

"I was at Culpepper, where were you?"

"I was at Piedmont."

"In camp?"

"No; on picket."

"Where were you?"

"On picket, too."

"So long—cold day today."

"Yes, but not like the cold New Year's of 186—"

NEW STYLE IN MILLINERY

(Connersville Examiner)

The spring style of women's hats for next year are quite unique and much out of the ordinary. Women, as a rule are very particular about their hats especially in the spring when the birds begin to sing and the flowers commence to bloom. The women of Connersville could get a great deal of information in advance concerning this particular style if they would take a peep at the "model" displayed by Miss Cora Monger in the window of the Emporium. This hat was Miss Monger's design, but was made by Mrs. Rachel Vance, residing west of this city. The hat was manufactured entirely from corn husks and has all the trimming effects that go to make a "swell" piece of head gear. An observer will notice that the roses have the proper color, or as near that color as corn husks will permit, and the petals serve to make it more

The name of Riley Males has been mentioned in connection with the presidency of the club.

MAY REVIVE RACING.

Hots Springs, Ark., Jan. 2.—A legislative act which would permit racing here under restrictions has been presented by the business men's committee, asking for a sixty to ninety-day race meeting here each year, to be divided between late fall and spring meetings. The racing is to be conducted three days of each week, to be under the government of three citizens of the county, who shall be appointed by the governor. They shall receive their pay from the county after $100 revenue is placed upon the racing each day.

The bill will be presented to the legislature the second week in January as a Business Men's league bill, and will be backed by local business interests.

INSANITY IS A BIG PROBLEM

Startling Are the Statistics Which Show Inadequate Provisions For Insane.

MANY DIE IN COUNTY JAILS

Suicide and Even Murder Fellow Inmates Through Lack of Care and Proper Quarters.

The total number of insane persons reported in Indiana on September 30, 1908, is 5276. Of these there are 4236 in the four State hospitals for the insane, as follows: Central Hospital, 1850; Northern Hospital, 938; Eastern Hospital, 779, and Southern Hospital, 669. There are 1,035 who are not in such institutions. Five hundred and forty-two of these are in county poor asylums, 43 are in county jails, 337 are on furlough from the State Hospitals and 118 are at home or with friends as reported by county clerks. All of the four existing State Hospitals are full to their capacity, and the Central at Indianapolis, which has a capacity of 1631, and 1850 patients present, is greatly overcrowded. Besides, there are reported 588 insane persons in the central district now outside the hospital. Add to this the 219 in the Central Hospital above its capacity and we have 807 patients needing hospital facilities in that district there are 179 such persons, in the eastern district 156 and in the southern district 117. The confinement of these unfortunate insane people in the county poor asylums is greatly to be regretted. While in many they fare well as could be expected under the circumstances, in most of such institutions there is almost an entire lack of facilities for ordinary care. In some of the conditions are indescribably bad, and from time to time reports come to us of harsh or inhuman treatment. It is greatly to be regretted that any insane person should be confined in a jail. The conditions in the county jails in which these mental defectives are sometimes quartered are regrettable beyond description. The lack of care, the solitary imprisonment in a cell or the miscellaneous congregation with all kinds of prisoners where the insane are made the objects of ridicule and torment, are conditions that should bring upon us reproach. Some of these insane have committed suicide in jail, others have beaten their poor bodies against the bars or fallen and bruised themselves upon the floor, others have assaulted their fellow prisoners and even murdered them. All this happened because we have not made proper provision for these unfortunate brothers of ours. Why should we not look at this subject aright? Why should not proper provision be made for them?

Within the past twelve months 684 insane persons have been confined within the walls of Indiana jails. The majority of these remained but a short time pending their transfer to the State Hospital for the Insane. A number, however, remain many weeks, and even months and years. We are building a new hospital at Madison to be called the Southeastern, but it will not nearly accommodate the 1150 persons now in sight who need proper State care. The State has done well in making provisions for its insane citizens. It has, however, not done all it should do. We should provide and keep available a bed for each 500 of our population if we would treat the problem of insanity in the proper way.

"Who Will Be Rushville's Best Patron?"

The Younger Set

By ROBERT W. CHAMBERS,

Author of "The Fighting Chance," Etc.

COPYRIGHT, 1907, BY ROBERT W. CHAMBERS.

It was early in August that Selwyn had come to the conclusion that his chaotic life was likely to prove a commercial success. And now, in September, his experiments had advanced so far that he had ventured to invite Austin, Gerald, Lansing and Edgerton Lawn of the Lawn Nitro Powder company to witness a few tests at his cottage laboratory on Storm head, but at the same time he informed them with characteristic modesty that he was not prepared to guarantee the explosive.

He froze chaotic and boiled it and baked it and melted it and took all sorts of hair raising liberties with it, and after that he ground it to a powder, placed a few generous pinches in a small hand grenade and affixed a primer, the secret composition of which he alone knew. That was the key to the secret—the composition of the primer charge.

"I used to play baseball in college," he observed, smiling, "and I used to be a pretty good shot with a snowball."

They followed him to the cliff's edge, always with great respect for the awful stuff he handled with such apparent carelessness. There was a black, sea soaked rock jutting out above the waves. Selwyn pointed at it, poised himself and, with the long, overhand, straight throw of a trained ball player, sent the grenade like a bullet at the rock.

There came a blinding flash, a stunning, clean cut report—but what the others took to be a vast column of black smoke was really a pillar of dust—all that was left of the rock. And this slowly floated, settling like mist over the waves, leaving nothing where the rock had been.

"I think," said Edgerton Lawn, wiping the starting perspiration from his forehead, "that you have made good, Captain Selwyn. Dense or bulk, your chaotic and impact primer seem to do the business, and I think I may say that the Lawn Nitro Powder company is ready to do business too. Can you come to town tomorrow? It's merely a matter of figures and signatures now, if you say so. It is entirely up to you."

But Selwyn only laughed. He looked at Austin.

"I suppose," said Edgerton Lawn good naturedly, "that you intend to make us sit up and beg, or do you mean to absorb us?"

But Selwyn said: "I want more time on this thing. I want to know what it does to the interior of loaded shells and in fixed ammunition when it is stored for a year. I want to know whether it is necessary to use a solvent after firing it in big guns. As a bursting charge I'm practically satisfied with it, but time is required to know how it acts on steel in storage or on the bores of guns when exploded as a propelling charge. Meanwhile," turning to Lawn, "I'm tremendously obliged to you for coming—and for your offer. You see how it is, don't you? I couldn't risk taking money for a thing which might at the end prove dear at any price."

"I cheerfully accept that risk," insisted young Lawn. "I am quite ready to do all the worrying, Captain Selwyn."

But Selwyn merely shook his head, repeating, "You see how it is, don't you?"

The matter of business arrangements apparently ended then and there. Lawn's company sent several men to Selwyn and wrote him a great many letters—unlike the government, which had not replied to his briefly tentative suggestion that chaotic be conditionally examined, tested and considered.

So the matter remained in abeyance, and Selwyn employed two extra men and continued storage tests and experimented with rifled and smoothbore tubes, watchfully uncertain yet as to the necessity of inventing a solvent to neutralize possible corrosion after a propelling charge had been exploded.

Everybody in the vicinity had heard about his experiments. Everybody pretended interest, but few were sincere, and of the sincere few were unselfishly interested—his sister, Eileen, Drina and Lansing and maybe one or two others.

However, the younger set, now the dominant from Wyossett to Wonder head, made up parties to visit Selwyn's cottage, which had become known as the Chrysalis, and Selwyn good naturedly exploded a pinch or two of the stuff for their amusement and never betrayed the slightest annoyance or boredom. In fact, he behaved so amiably during gratuitous interruptions that he won the hearts of the younger set, who presently came to the unanimous conclusion that there was romance in the air. And they sniffed it with delicate noses uptilted and liked the aroma.

One man, often the least suitable, is usually the unanimous choice of the younger set where, in the disconcerting summer time, the youthful congregation in garrulous segregation.

Their choice they expressed frankly and innocently. They admitted cheerfully that Selwyn was their idol. But that gentleman remained totally unconscious that he had been set up by them upon the shores of the summer sea.

On the sunlit sands dozens of young people were hurling tennis balls at each other. Above the beach, under the long pavilions, sat mothers and chaperons. Motors, beach carts and victorias were still arriving to discharge gayly dressed fashionables, for the hour was early, and up and down the inclined wooden walk leading from the bathing pavilion to the sands a constant procession of bathers passed with nod and gesture of laughing salutation, some already retiring to the showers after a brief ocean plunge, the majority running down to the shore, eager for the first frosty and aromatic embrace of the surf rolling in under a cloudless sky of blue.

As Eileen Erroll emerged from the surf and came wading shoreward through the seething shallows she caught sight of Selwyn sauntering across the sands toward the water and halted, knee deep, smilingly expectant, certain that he had seen her.

Gladys Orchil, passing her, saw Selwyn at the same moment, and her clear ringing salute and slender arm aloft, arrested his attention, and the next moment they were off together, swimming toward the sponson canoe which Gerald had just launched with the assistance of Sandon Craig and Scott Innis.

For a moment Eileen stood there motionless. Knee high the flat ebb boiled and hissed, gragging at her stockinged feet as though to draw her seaward with the others. Yesterday she would have gone without a thought to join the others, but yesterday it seemed to her as she stood there that something disquieting had suddenly come into the world, something unpleasant, but indefinite, yet sufficient to leave her vaguely apprehensive.

Somebody threw a tennis ball at her. She caught it and hurled it in return, and for a few minutes the white, felt covered balls flew back and forth from scores of graceful, eager hands. A moment or two passed when no balls came her way. She turned and walked to the foot of a dune and seated herself cross legged on the hot sand, her serious, beautiful eyes fixed steadily on a distant white spot—the sponson canoe where Gladys and Selwyn sat, their paddle blades flashing in the sun.

How far away they were! Gerald was with them. Curious that Selwyn had not seen her waiting for him, knee deep in the surf—curious that he had seen Gladys instead! True, Gladys had called to him and signaled him, white arm upflung. Gladys was very pretty—with her heavy, dark hair and melting, Spanish eyes and her softly rounded, olive skinned figure. Gladys had called to him, and she had not. That was true, and lately—for the last few days or perhaps more—she herself had been a trifle less impulsive in her greeting of Selwyn—a little less sans facon with him. After all, a man comes when it pleases him. Why should a girl call him—unless she—unless—

Perplexed, her grave eyes were fixed on the sea where now the white canoe pitched nearer, close on cncw.

When the canoe suddenly capstwed, Gladys jumped, but Selwyn went with it, boat and man tumbling into the tumult over and over. As Eileen looked she saw a dark streak leap across his face—saw him stoop and wash it off and stand, looking blindly about, while again the sudden dark line crisscrossed his face from temple to chin and spread wider like a stain.

"Philip!" she called, springing to her feet and scarcely knowing that she had spoken.

He heard her and came toward her in a halting, dazed way, stopping twice to cleanse his face of the bright blood that streaked it.

"It's nothing," he said. "The infernal thing hit me. Oh, don't use that!" as she drenched her kerchief in cold sea water and held it toward him with both hands.

"Take it, I—I beg of you," she stammered. "Is it s-serious?"

"Why, no," he said, his senses clearing. "It was only a rap on the head, and this blood is merely a nuisance. Thank you; I will use your kerchief if you insist. It'll stop in a moment anyway."

"Please sit here," she said—"here where I've been sitting."

He did so, muttering: "What a nuisance! It will stop in a second. You needn't remain here with me, you know. Go in. It is simply glorious."

"I've been in. I was drying my hair."

He glanced up, smiling; then, as the wet kerchief against his forehead reddened, he started to rise, but she took it from his fingers, hastened to the water's edge, rinsed it and brought it back cold and wet.

"Please sit perfectly still," she said. "A girl likes to do this sort of thing for a man."

"If I'd known that," he laughed. "I'd have had it happen frequently."

She only shook her head, watching him unsmiling. But the pulse in her had become very quiet again.

"It's no end of fun in that canoe," he observed. "Gladys Orchil and I work it beautifully."

"I saw you did," she nodded.

"Oh! Where were you? Why didn't you come?"

"I don't know," Gladys called you. I was waiting for you—expecting you. Then Gladys called you."

"I didn't see you," he said.

"I didn't call you," she observed serenely, and after a moment she added, "Do you see only those who hail you, Captain Selwyn?"

He laughed. "In this life's cruise a good sailor always answers a friendly hail."

"So do I," she said. "Please hail me after this—because I don't care to take the initiative. If you neglect to do it, don't count on my hailing you any more."

The stain spread on the kerchief. Once more she went to the water's edge, rinsed it and returned with it. "I think it has almost stopped bleeding," she remarked as he laid the cloth against his forehead. "You frightened me, Captain Selwyn. I am not easily frightened."

"I know it."

"Did you know I was frightened?"

"Of course I did."

"Oh," she said, vexed, "how could you know it? I didn't do anything silly, did I?"

"No; you very sensibly called me Philip. That's how I knew you were frightened."

A slow, bright color stained face and neck.

"So I was silly, after all," she said, biting at her under lip and trying to meet his humorous gray eyes with unconcern. But her face was burning now, and, aware of it, she turned her gaze resolutely on the sea. Also, to her further annoyance, her heart awoke, beating unwarrantably, absurdly, until the dreadful idea seized her that he could hear it. Disconcerted, she stood up—a straight, youthful figure against the sea. The wind, blowing, her disheveled hair across her cheeks and shoulders, fluttered her clinging skirts as she rested both hands on her hips and slowly walked toward the water's edge.

"Shall we swim?" he asked her.

She half turned and looked around and down at him.

Despair and Despondency

No one but a woman can tell the story of the suffering, the despair, and the despondency endured by women who carry a daily burden of ill-health and pain because of disorders and derangements of the delicate and important organs that are distinctly feminine. The tortures so bravely endured completely upset the nerves if long continued.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a positive cure for weakness and disease of the feminine organism.

IT MAKES WEAK WOMEN STRONG, SICK WOMEN WELL.

It allays inflammation, heals ulceration and soothes pain. It tones and builds up the nerves. It fits for wifehood and motherhood. Honest medicine dealers sell it, and have nothing to urge upon you as "just as good."

It is non-secret, non-alcoholic and has a record of forty years of cures. Ask Your Neighbors. They probably know of some of its many cures.

If you want a book that tells all about woman's diseases, and how to cure them at home, send 21 one-cent stamps to Dr. Pierce to pay cost of mailing only, and he will send you a free copy of his great thousand-page illustrated Common Sense Medical Adviser—revised, up-to-date edition, in paper covers. In handsome cloth-binding, 31 stamps. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

BLOODY BREATHITT BREATHES EASIER

Kentucky Feudists Get Out of It Without Bloodshed.

Jackson, Ky., Jan. 2.—Fearing that the governor would send troops to Breathitt county to preserve order, the Callahan and Deaton factions agreed to a truce and disbanded. Both bands then left Jackson.

The compromise was the result of the dismissal of the warrants against former Sheriff Callahan and seven of his adherents, who are charged with the shooting of Rash Sebastian, and those against Govan Smith and two of the Deaton faction for confederating and for shooting up the Callahan home shortly after the presidential election.

Judge Taubee's action in dismissing the warrants, it is said, was taken on recommendation of some of the most prominent citizens and leaders in the law and order movement in Breathitt county. When the cases were called up, Judge Taubee was about to direct the summoning of an armed posse to take the place of the troops which the governor had been asked to send, when the proposition to dismiss the warrants in the interest of peace was made and to which the court agreed.

SIX THOUSAND PRESENT

White House New Year's Reception Broke the Record.

Washington, Jan. 2.—President Roosevelt and over 6,000 people, representing every land and every state and territory in the Union, yesterday exchanged happy new year greetings at the White House. For three and a half hours the president stood receiving his guests, and when the reception was ended, last year's record of attendance had been broken by over 700. Many men and women distinguished in the official and social life of Washington were present.

Defense Opens in Erb Case.

Media, Pa., Jan. 2.—The commonwealth closed in the Erb case here without having produced evidence to prove that Captain J. Clayton Erb was killed as a result of a murderous plot by the defendants, his wife and her sister. The defense opened by an address to the jury outlining the contention that Mrs. Catharine Beisel shot her brother-in-law to death after a fierce struggle in self-defense during which she wrested the pistol from him.

Human Bones in Furnace.

Chicago, Jan. 2.—A probable murder in which the body of the victim, believed to have been Mrs. Annie Raffy, a negro servant was burned in the furnace of a fashionable apartment building was disclosed by the police by the finding of human bones in the ashes of the furnace. The police are searching for the woman's husband, who is said to have disappeared.

DARING AFFRONT OFFERED COURT

Prisoner Wanted the Judge to Shoot Craps With Him.

LECTURED FOR HIS RASHNESS

During Progress of Trial on Charge of Drunk and Disorderly Conduct at Winslow, Everett Reed Threw a Quarter on the Judge's Bench and Told the Court He Would "Shoot Him for a Quarter"—The Reprimand That Followed Probably Gave Culprit a New Conception of the Dignity of the Court.

Petersburg, Ind., Jan. 2.—While Judge Feltinger of Winslow was holding court, trying fifteen prisoners for drunkenness and disorderly conduct, one of the prisoners, Everett Reed of Mackerville, wished to shoot craps with the judge. He threw a quarter on the judge's bench and told him he would shoot him for a quarter. The judge brought the offender before his court and gave him a lecture that he will remember.

MOVEMENT FOR PUBLICITY

Tippecanoe County Takes Stand in Favor of "Opening the Books."

Lafayette, Ind., Jan. 2.—Investigation of the books and accounts of all county officers in Tippecanoe county by two experts in the event that the state legislature does not enact a measure providing for such inspection was decided on by the board of county commissioners.

The board adopted resolutions pledging itself to ask the county council at its next regular meeting in September, 1909, to make a special appropriation for employing two competent men to inspect all books and accounts of county officers. The board in its resolutions specifies that one of the men is to be a Republican, the other a Democrat. The resolutions state that while all books of public officers are open for inspection by the public, the people have neither the time nor the inclination to study the books and gain an understanding of the true condition. They also state that there is a growing sentiment in favor of more publicity of public books and accounts. The request of the county council is only to be made in the event the general assembly at its coming session does not pass a law providing for inspection of county books.

PACKETS RUNNING AGAIN

The Ohio River at Boating Stage for First Time in Months.

Jeffersonville, Ind., Jan. 2.—Within the last week the river here has risen nearly three feet on the falls of the Ohio, where there was practically no water for months. The first coal tows for several months passed down this week and yesterday three barges of brick arrived from Portsmouth, Ohio, for which street contractors have been waiting since early in the summer. The packets, which have been laid up for a couple of months while their place was taken by smaller boats, have resumed running and the business on the river is again becoming somewhat brisk.

ANOTHER POSTOFFICE ROBBED

Cracksmen Pay Their Respects to Eagletown This Time.

Eagletown, Ind., Jan. 2.—Thieves entered the postoffice here and, blowing open the safe, obtained valuable papers, deeds, etc., more than $100 worth of stamps, a gold watch and some loose change.

He Brandished a Revolver.
Linton, Ind., Jan. 2.—Charged with brandishing a revolver and threatening to slay his former wife and his nephew at the residence of Marion Phillips, Joseph Uland, thirty years old, was arrested after a struggle. It is alleged that unfriendly relations have existed between Uland and his nephew, John Uland, since the former's wife obtained a divorce some time ago. All of the persons concerned are prominent residents of the city.

Foul Play Suspected.
Connorsville, Ind., Jan. 2.—William Piper, father of Fred Piper, who was found north of this city in a dying condition, says he knows no reason why his son should seek his own life. A revolver was found near Piper's right hand and a bullet hole through his head. The young man's father thinks it possible that his son met with foul play because of the fact that a watch and two rings, one set with a diamond are missing.

Made Personal Call.
Hartford City, Ind., Jan. 2.—Ethar W. Secrest of this city, who will be prosecutor of Blackford and Wells counties for the next two years, has made a personal visit to each of the remaining saloon keepers in this city and informed them that they may expect no mercy from him for violations of the liquor laws.

ELABORATE CEREMONIES

Will Mark the Consecration of New Bishop at Washington.

Washington, Jan. 2.—With elaborate ceremonies and high church dignitaries participating, the Rev. Dr. Alfred Harding, recently elected bishop of the REV. ALFRED HARDING.

Episcopal diocese in Washington, will be consecrated at Trinity church in this city on Jan. 25. Dr. Harding has just been notified that his election to the bishopric of Washington had been ratified by the bishops of the church in the United States.

They Made Their Escape.

Catania, Jan. 2.—While nothing yet is definitely known concerning the Americans supposed to have been in Messina at the time of the earthquake it has been learned that a party of twenty English-speaking persons which may have included some Americans, made their escape, crossing a large tract of country which was not harmed by the shocks, in the direction of Palermo.

Wealthy Cattleman Murdered.

El Paso, Tex., Jan. 2.—Frank Evans a wealthy cattle man, was found dead near Hachita, N. M. His head had been split open with an ax. James M. Kennedy, who was with Evans rounding up cattle, has been arrested suspected of the murder. Kennedy is believed to be insane.

Movement for Concerted Relief.

Washington, Jan. 2.—Baron Mayer Des Planches, the Italian ambassador to this country, is working out plans for the relief of the sufferers from the earthquake, and he will endeavor to rally the aid of Italians throughout the United States. Thousands of Italians in the United States have suffered indirectly through the catastrophe, and it is expected that prompt response to the appeal will be made.

FORTY-ONE DEATH SENTENCES

Extreme Penalty for Russian Strikers an Echo of 1905 Trouble.

Yekaterinoslav, Russia, Jan. 2.—The military court in session here has just pronounced forty-one death sentences, of which nine were for recent crimes. Thirty-two of the condemned men were strikers in the railroad troubles of October, 1905. In addition to the death sentences, twelve strikers were condemned to penal servitude for life, forty-eight to lesser terms of exile and thirty-nine were acquitted. These sentences grew out of the events of 1905, when strikers, numbering hundreds and thousands throughout Russia attempted to tie up the whole railway system, telegraph lines and gas and electric light plants. The demonstrations at Yekaterinoslav were particularly desperate, many persons being killed and injured. The criminal prosecution in these events was only recently commenced.

Germans Still on Their Dignity.

Berlin, Jan. 2.—The emperor was very coldly greeted by the populace when he passed through the streets yesterday from Potsdam, there being no demonstration of any kind.

MINE RESCUE WORK.

Geological Survey Will Instruct Miners in Use of Apparatus.

WOULD REDUCE FATALITIES.

Government Plans to Assign to Several Coal Regions Trained Engineers Who Will Be Equipped With Oxygen Helmets and Show Picked Men How to Use Same.

Carrying out its efforts to reduce the number of fatalities in coal mines, the United States geological survey is about to establish rescue stations in the principal coal fields of the country in addition to the experiment station already in Pittsburgh. The new stations will be at or near the center of the greatest accidents, and it will be the purpose of the experts to teach the miners and the mine bosses how to use the most approved apparatus for mine rescue work.

Government mining engineers thoroughly trained in the use of rescue apparatus will be assigned to those stations, and they will be ready at a moment's notice to go to any place in their respective districts. The experts will be equipped with oxygen helmets, which will enable them to enter a mine at once, even though it is filled with gas or smoke. These stations also will be headquarters of the engineers for the study of the waste of coal in mining, one of the important problems before the geological survey.

It is the intention to have every station fitted with an air tight room where gas can be generated. The coal mining companies are to be invited to send picked men to those stations, where they will be trained by the government experts in the use of the oxygen helmets. It is not the purpose of the government to engage in general rescue work, but rather to demonstrate that apparatus until such time as the mine owners have thoroughly trained rescue crews at their mines. All the rescue stations are to be erected in cooperation with the mine owners and state geological surveys.

One of the rescue stations will be in Urbana, Ill., in connection with the University of Illinois. It will take care of Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Iowa, northern Missouri and western Kentucky.

A second station probably will be in Raton, N. M., to cover New Mexico, Colorado, Utah, Wyoming and Montana. The largest coal output in New Mexico and Colorado comes from the Trinidad field, which is immediately accessible to Raton. A second station is suggested for that district, to be in Salt Lake City. That station will be central for the several Utah fields and will be accessible to the Montana fields and also the Washington fields.

The coal fields of Oklahoma, Arkansas and southwestern Missouri will be taken care of by a station in the neighborhood of South McAlester, Okla.

Several places are suggested for the station to cover Alabama, Tennessee, Virginia, eastern Kentucky, Georgia and southern West Virginia. One plan is to establish a station in Knoxville, Tenn., in connection with the University of Tennessee, which is in Knoxville and has a mining course. Birmingham, Ala., and Lexington, Ky., also have been suggested for the station in that district.

George S. Rice, mining engineer, will have general charge of all mining inquiries in the stations, and J. W. Paul, former state mine inspector of West Virginia, will have supervisory charge of all rescue work. In the stations not only will opportunity be given to the miners to become familiar with the rescue apparatus, but safety lamps of all designs will be tested in the presence of the miners and the mine owners.

ACROSS OCEAN BY BALLOON.

Fisher Proposes Trip Under Gas Bag With Many Little Feeders.

Carl G. Fisher of Indianapolis, Ind., and George L. Bumbaugh, who recently made a short trip in a balloon with an automobile for a basket, are planning a trip through air across the Atlantic ocean, and their plan has been approved by a number of well known professionals throughout the country.

It is proposed to make the trip in a gigantic balloon, attached to which will be twenty smaller supply balloons that may be bled into the larger bag as the leakage makes necessary.

Instead of a basket to carry the passengers, a specially built boat will be made.

Fly Reveals Poison in Milk.

A wholesale attempt to exterminate the roomers in a boarding house in Los Angeles, Cal., failed because a fly was instantly killed when it fell into a five gallon can of poisoned milk. As Mrs. Martin, the proprietor, started to carry an open five gallon can of milk into the house from the back porch a fly flew into the milk and almost instantly died. She immediately notified the police, and detectives ordered that a chemical analysis be made of the milk. When this was made by City Chemist Miller the poison was discovered.

Tar Spreading Latest Vandalism.
"Jack the Tar Spreader" is giving the detective force of Indianapolis no end of trouble, and there is not a night but women's expensive gowns are ruined at the theaters. In addition to smearing tar on gowns he drops small balls of it on the floors, and they are trampled over the carpets by those who happen to tread on them.

FARMERS ARE PLOWING NOW

Weather Conditions Are Unusually Favorable For This Time of the Year.

WHEAT STAND IS VERY LIGHT

Unless There is Fine Wheat Weather Prospects are Conceded to be None Too Bright.

This season is proving quite unusual from a weather standpoint and as a result the farmers are able to continue work on their fall plowing till the first of the year and they may yet be able to make the date a later one. In various sections of the county and all over the State the farmers were able to plow on Christmas day, and many of them took advantage of the opportunity. The rain has just made the ground damp enough to turn over right and the turf was soft and the weather warm. As a result people traveling over the county this week reported that men were to be seen plowing in the fields all over this section.

It is only the exceptional year when much plowing can be done after the fall work is finished and out of the way. The farmers always like to get into their fields, but there are many years when the weather conditions make it impossible. One year not so very long ago, the day before Christmas was the only day when it was possible to plow and those who took advantage of the single day were the only ones who were able to touch their fields before spring.

In the wheat situation there has not been great encouragement shown thus far this winter. In many fields where the wheat has sown the blades are above the ground so that they can be seen at a close inspection, but to one passing on the road there is not a tinge of green evident in the fields. In many cases there is little evidence that the wheat has sprouted at all and the condition of the weather during the remainder of the winter will determine whether the crop amounts to anything or not. Some few stands are good for this time of the year, but according to most authorities, the prospects are not the most encouraging in the world.
